The Toyota Corolla Altis has been a very popular car for Toyota in the Indian market. This month we have another fan from Delhi who shares her experience with us.

Tarveen Kaur, an education consultant from Delhi, loves her Corolla Altis. She had a midsize saloon but her heart was always set on a bigger car. So Tarveen did a lot of market research and asked around for advice. Her friend, who had an Altis, recommended the car to her. "My friend managed to convince me that the Corolla Altis is the perfect choice for me. She has had it for almost a year and is very pleased with it."

Tarveen went ahead and bought a silver Corolla Altis in July 2010 and is glad she got one. Now she just cannot stop gushing about her new car. "The Altis looks and feels as if it belongs to a much higher segment. It also offers a driving experience which I have never felt before in any other car."

According to her, the beautiful flowing lines of the shape and the pretty front headlamp cluster are the best features of the exterior. What Tarveen really admires is the 475-litre boot. "We went for a driving holiday and had a lot of luggage. I was a bit worried about whether all of it would fit in there, but the massive boot easily swallowed it all. It felt really satisfying," she beams.

We took the Altis for a holiday and had a lot of luggage but the massive 475-litre boot easily swallowed it all.

It is the luxurious cabin of the Corolla Altis where Tarveen's in-laws come into the picture. They are immensely pleased by the comfortable interiors of the car. "We love the rear seat comfort and the superb air-conditioning in the car," say Inderjeet Singh and Gurveen Kaur, her father-in law and mother-in law respectively. According to Inderjeet Singh, the rear seat space is commendable. "It is so spacious and comfortable that even after long journeys we hardly feel any stress or tiredness.

What Tarveen really likes is the fabulously appointed dashboard. "The lovely control dials and the overall quality are very impressive. I also like the design and position of the air-conditioner vents," she remarks and adds that the beautifully crafted wood-finish dashboard is very pleasing.

Tarveen also loves the steering wheel of the Altis. "It has good grip and is very light as well but what I really like is the steering-mounted audio controls.

In heavy traffic, when it is hard to take your eyes off the road, they prove to be a huge advantage."

Another useful aspect in the Altis for Tarveen is the vanity mirror. "It's so easy now to do my makeup in the car, all thanks to this mirror," she says with a smile.

Tarveen Kaur is smitten by her car. "I have got so used to my Corolla Altis that now I can't imagine life without it!" We don't blame you Tarveen. Every Toyota owner feels the same way.
